Dear Andy,

On behalf of Coursera, Inc. ("The Company"), it is my pleasure to formalize our offer to you for the position of Software Engineer Intern, reporting to Lin Yuan, Engineering Manager.

The Company will pay you a starting base salary at a rate of $7,500 per month, less applicable withholdings and deductions, payable in accordance with the Company's standard payroll schedule and procedures. In addition, you will receive a housing allowance of $1,500 per month, less applicable withholding deductions.

As an intern and temporary employee of the Company, you will not be eligible to participate in Company-sponsored benefits, such as unlimited paid time off. The Company provides interns up to three days of paid sick leave during each year of employment. Sick leave does not accrue.

Additionally, on your first day of employment, you will be required to provide the Company documentary evidence of your identity and eligibility for employment in the United States to satisfy the requirements of Employment Eligibility Verification (Form I-9) as required by Federal law.

This internship will last for a period of 12 weeks in the summer of 2017.

While we hope and expect that this will be the beginning of a rewarding employment relationship, you are not being promised any particular term of employment and you should be aware that either you or Coursera, Inc. may rescind this offer letter or terminate the employment relationship at any time for any reason.

This offer will expire on 11/23/2016. Please confirm your acceptance of this offer and start date by returning a signed copy of this letter to the sender. The entire Coursera team is looking forward to working with you!

Sincerely,

Betty Tsan
Director of Talent
